AZ	Gov. Ducey announced that he wants to start the dialogue on how to restart the economy and sent a generic letter to the business community stating his intentions. The effort will be led by the Arizona Commerce Authority (ACA), which is a public-private entity responsible for commerce policy in AZ.  Our lobbyist has spoken with the ACA and they are still in the beginning stages of determining how to move forward. They are very interested in hearing from companies that are currently closed, however, they are also open to ideas/suggestions from other industries that have been severely impacted by the shelter in place directives. For now, they are simply asking for ideas and suggestions to be sent to the ACA. They will then use this as a framework for future discussions and to develop a priority list for the governor to consider.		No	Unknown

UT	Gov. Herbert announced that on Friday May 1, Utah will move from "Red" High Risk to "Orange" Moderate Risk for COVID-19. The governor emphasized the new level is less-restrictive but remains a cautious operating system. The Orange level opens some elements of the Utah economy, with some risks to the public for COVID-19. Gov. Herbert announced an update to the state's plan on opening the economy, entitled UTAH LEADS TOGETHER 2.0. At a press conference, Gov. Herbert stated the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- The state plan in place currently has been working to flatten the curve and get the state back on track.</li> <li>- He is hopeful that Utah can begin easing restrictions in the beginning of May, including those restrictions on in-house dining, elective surgeries, and gyms.</li> <li>- Restrictions can only be lifted as Utahns continue to adhere to the Stay Safe, Stay Home directive.</li> <li>- The timeline of Utah's plan includes three phases: urgent, stabilization, and recovery.</li> <li>- Utah is at the end of the "urgent" phase.</li> <li>- Stay-at-home directives and orders are in place until May 1 — with promise the state may begin to gradually reopen.</li> <li>- The state will continue social distancing, increasing testing and maintaining public health orders limiting certain activities.</li> <li>- The stabilization phase is expected to continue through September, according to the plan.</li> </ul>	https://coronavirus.utah.gov/utah-leads-together/	No	Unknown
